Introduction to Chemical Engineering Processes/Print Version

Catalysis is the process of increasing the rate of a chemical reaction by adding a substance known as a catalyst (/ ˈ k ˌ ɪ t ˌ ɪ z ˌ ɪ s t /), which is not consumed in the catalyzed reaction and can continue to act repeatedly. Because of this, only very small amounts of catalyst are required to alter the reaction rate in principle. In general, chemical reactions occur faster in the presence of a ...

Fluorine is a chemical element with symbol F and atomic number 9. It is the lightest halogen and exists as a highly toxic pale yellow diatomic gas at standard conditions. As the most electronegative element, it is extremely reactive, as it reacts with almost all other elements, except for helium and neon.. Among the elements, fluorine ranks 24th in universal abundance and 13th in terrestrial ...
